

Dr. Noor Jihan Abdul-Haqq Biography

Dr. Noor Jihan Abdul-Haqq is a board-certified integrative pediatrician based in Oklahoma City, OK, with a rich public health and community service background. She graduated with honors in Biochemistry from Spelman College and completed her medical education and residency at Morehouse School of Medicine. Recently, Dr. Abdul-Haqq enhanced her expertise by completing a Pediatric Integrative Medicine Fellowship through the Academy of Pediatric Integrative Medicine.

Dr. Abdul-Haqq has made significant domestic and international contributions, providing medical services in Barbados, the Dominican Republic, and Mexico. Her commitment to healthcare excellence has earned her numerous accolades, including the Leonard Tow Humanism in Medicine Award, the Practitioner of Excellence Award from the Sisters United Organization, and the Journal Record's Achievers Under 40 Award. Recently, the Journal Record honored her as a healthcare hero.

In September 2015, Dr. Abdul-Haqq founded Peace of Mind Pediatrics to serve the community she grew up in. As an advocate for health equity, she was crucial in establishing the Clara Community Health Center in Oklahoma City in September 2020, a free clinic dedicated to providing care for the uninsured. Additionally, she serves as a faculty presenter for the REACH Institute, which focuses on training primary care clinicians in managing mental health disorders in youth.

As a pediatric mental health coach through Dr. Jihan LLC, she specializes in helping children with diagnoses such as Anxiety, Depression, ADHD, Aggression, and Autism thrive. By incorporating nutrition education, mindfulness, and evidence-based behavioral techniques into her practice, Dr. Abdul-Haqq has positively impacted the lives of hundreds of families.

Dr. Abdul-Haqq is also deeply committed to mentoring high school and college students and assisting fellow physicians in establishing their own medical practices. As a dedicated community leader, she strives to promote health and well-being for all. She and her loving husband are the proud parents of three wonderful children, further inspiring her passion for healthy communities.

Dr. Abdul-Haqq's extensive experience and dedication to public health make her an exceptional appointee for the Oklahoma City-County Board of Health.